HISTORY

PRIVATE RESIDENCE
BOSSIER CITY, LA.

DATE OF INVESTIGATION: March 19, 2011

PARTICIPANTS: James Palmer, Traci Myers, Keith Myers, Bess Maxwell, Crystal Vines, and John Combs

NOTE: The clients in this investigation have requested confidentiality. Some information may have been obscured to honor their request. This in no way affects the data presented, or any conclusions herein.

BACKGROUND

The clients built this custom 2-story home about thirteen years ago. The current clients/residents are a husband and wife, along with their adult son. For purposes of this report, the son shall be called "Bob". Bob's sister also resided in this home for a while, and experienced anomalous happenings, along with the other three. Unexplained happenings began almost immediately after initial occupancy, and has been on-going since. Bob, with consent, contacted us for research into the reported and observed events, and was present during this investigation. Clients report that there seems to be two different sets of general phenomena. The original phenomena involves object displacement and hiding, including silverware and articles of clothing. Electronic items have been moved, turned on, and turned off. Blankets have been pulled, as well as tucked in, while the beds were occupied. Footsteps are heard at night between Bob's bedroom, and his sister's bedroom, both on the second floor. Doors have been both opened and closed, and door knobs have been noted to be jiggled. Figures have been seen in the living area, by family as well as friends. As Bob was preparing to leave for college, Bob's photo was picked up from the mantle, and thrown across the living room by an unseen force, causing the picture frame glass to break. Chairs have been moved, and arranged in display format, which is a characteristic of poltergeist activity, but in this case, we do not believe it was actual poltergeist activity, but simply part of the regular object displacement. The clients have named this “house guest” Jim, and address him as such. Lost and removed objects are often returned, often being found in unusual places, when Jim is asked to return items. The general nature of Jim seems to be that of a practical joker. The second set of phenomena, initiated about three years ago, involves sighting of a black shadow figure, seen down stairs in the area from the master bedroom, through the connecting hall, and into the dining room, and once, in the entry. It is also observed in the upstairs hallway. This entity seems to bring on feelings of fear, unease, and dread. There is a reported feeling of impending violence. These different feelings are often encountered before the actual figure is observed. Ordinary shadows, as opposed to a shadow figure, with a human shape have been observed in these areas, with nothing to cast the shadow being observed.

EQUIPMENT: Digital cameras, digital audio recorders, various EMF meters including Tri-Fields, motion detectors, ion counters, digital thermometers, infrasound detection equipment, digital video recorder with infrared cameras, and PEAR REG-1 units for the detection of human consciousness interactions, with software on Hewlett-Packard computers.

INVESTIGATION

At the times of testing, and in the areas tested, no high positive ion concentrations were noted. No standing wave infrasound was encountered. No naturally occurring high EMF fields were found in areas where exposure would be of sufficient quantity and over time to cause hallucinatory effects. No anomalous motion was detected. No anomalies were photographed by still photography, nor captured on video. Temperature drops were observed by the video monitor, set up in the kitchen in front of the pantry door. The first was observed by Traci Myers at about 11:00 P.M., and the second one by Keith Myers, at about midnight. There were no air conditioning vents in the immediate area, or other sources of cold air that could have caused quick temperature drops, immediately noted, of about 5 degrees Fahrenheit.

PERSONAL EXPERIENCES

JOHN COMBS

At about 9:10 P.M., I placed a computer and REG-1 unit in the pantry, in the kitchen, as the pantry was an area of reported activity. This room is long and narrow, with a walkway in the center. The computer was placed on step stool in the walkway, about three feet inside the door, and the door closed. I could see this area from the living room, and no one entered the pantry. I returned at approximately 9:25 P.M. to check the results. As I walked into the pantry, there was a small puddle of water on the floor directly in front on the computer. The puddle was shallow and about four inches in diameter. There are no water outlets in the pantry. There were no containers leaking, or empty from the entire contents leaking out. There was no trail of water leading to the puddle, and in the short period of time between observations, a trail would not have time to evaporate. As the floor is laminate, I cleaned up the liquid immediately. It was colorless, odorless, and had the consistency of water, but was not analyzed. No source for the water could be found. At about 12:30 A.M., Bob and I were talking in the living room, in front of the fire place. Bob placed his hand on the mantle, to lean against the fireplace. He immediately withdrew his hand, indicating the area directly in front of the photo that had in an earlier event been thrown across the room. Upon inspection, there was a sheen of water, about six inches in diameter on the mantle. It was not consistent with water condensation from a glass or similar container, and no container or beverage had been in the living room that night. The sheen was so slight that it evaporated completely in about two to three minutes, and we had been talking in that spot for a longer period on time than that, before the water was discovered. The liquid was colorless, odorless, and had the consistency of water, but was not analyzed. Along with the moving and prominent displaying of chairs in the home, these two incidents, the sudden appearance of water when no source is known or reason for the appearance found, is also a symptom of poltergeist phenomena. However, the apportioning of water is a phenomenon almost exclusive to poltergeist activity in South America. That coupled with the belief that poltergeist activity originates in times of high tension or stress, and very seldom lasts over 12 weeks, makes these incidents unlikely to be poltergeist activity. I conclude that the similarity is coincidence, or mimicry.

Traci Myers

At about 9:40 P.M. Traci Myers was seated at the video monitor, and felt that someone had placed their hand on top of her head. No one was in the immediate area to have done so. There have been reports from the bedroom that Bobs' sister used to occupy of individuals, while in or on the bed, felt bed linens either being moved, tugged, or tucked in around them. Traci Myers, while lying on the bed, felt the sensation of the mattress being firmly pushed upward, from the direction of underneath the bed. Bob changed places with Traci Myers, also experiencing the same sensations. During monitoring of this room, when no one was on the landing outside this bedroom, the ambient light was blocked from entering this room. No one was found in the area, and footsteps are easily heard on the second-story landing outside the doorway to this room. The blocking of light was observed by both Bob and Traci Myers.

POSITIVE RESPONSES TO REQUESTED INTERACTIONS

INVOLVING

INTERPERSONAL COMMUNICATIONS BY TACTILE MEANS

Bess Maxwell / James Palmer / Crystal Vines / Client - Bob

Mid-evening, all four individuals were in the master bedroom, when two series of requests were made to produce a knocking noise on the walls. On both occasions, loud knocking noises came from the master bathroom, louder than one would normally hear from a knock on a door, and came in immediate response to the request. No one was in the bathroom, and all four individuals were in sight of each other when the knocking sounds were made. No natural explanation was found. No other knocking was heard before or after the immediate responses to requests.

Traci Myers / Keith Myers / Client - Bob

All three individuals were in the second floor television room when Keith Myers requested a three-knock response, which came in about a 13 second interval. No other knocking was heard in this area during the night, before or after the immediate response.

ELECTRONIC VOICE PHENOMENON (EVP)

It is noted that sounds did carry very well in this home. Therefore, utmost care was taken in the evaluation of the audio evidence gathered. There were a series of anomalous noises-type phenomena noted, not consistent with what would have normally been expected during research. These were generally not considered, as the sounds could have been transmitted from other areas of the home, where activity of other researchers could not be accounted for. One that is mentioned here is what sounded like the voice and/or laughter of a very small child. Where it did sound to be a voice, the words were not decipherable, but the sounds were consistent as described. No audio device such as television, stereo, radio, or other was on while we were on premises, and no small children were present in the home.

Traci Myers

At about 10:00 P.M., while gathering audio in the bedroom that had been occupied by Bob's sister, Traci asked the question if anyone was present who would like to talk. An immediate response of an anomalous voice was recorded saying "Yeah".

JAMES PALMER

James Palmer, Bess Maxwell, Crystal Vines and Bob were in the master bedroom, discussing the black shadow figure that had been reported seen in that area. Crystal Vines made the comment, "Wow". Just this was said, a male voice, seeming to be of an elderly gentleman made a comment, possibly 2 words, or I two-syllable word, which coincided with Crystal Vines comment. The male voice was recorded, but not heard at time of recording. A second or so later, the same male voice spoke again, recorded but not heard, and again, 1 word, as I hear it. The first utterance, since it also coincides with the word wow, is open to interpretation as to what is said. The second utterance, I believe, is the word "Help". I also note that I believe the original recording is reversed in its original form, a reasonably common event in EVP, and must be reversed again to return it to "normal". I note that this EVP has been controversial in nature and interpretation, and that other researchers believe this utterance to be "get out", two syllables, though "help" and "get out" should sound nothing alike. The tone of the voice is very gravelly, and could not have been made by the client or any team member, nor was it heard at time of recording by any of the four individuals present. The source of the voice remains unknown.

CONSCIOUSNESS DETECTION - PEAR REG-1 UNITS

This testing is passive in nature and designed to detect through quantum tunneling, the probability that a human type consciousness may be present affecting the REG- 1 units, when all incarnate consciousness has been removed from the areas of testing. The minimum reporting standard for this type testing is $p, .05$, with the $.05$ representing the probability that the event could be the result due to chance alone in the probability distribution. A total of 70 tests were run. At the minimum reporting standard of $.05$, we could expect to receive 3.5 tests due to chance affecting the probability distribution, resulting in 3.5 false positives for human consciousness being the cause. The actual mean score of the 22 positive tests received was $p < .027806$, as $.05$ is only the largest score that can be counted. The corrected expectation at this average would be $70 \times .027806 = 1.95$ positives due to chance alone, which would round up to two. Instead of the two scores, by chance alone, we did receive 22 positives, 11 times the expected results if only chance were involved. Note that after the room designation, the number following is the test number. The tests and scores are as follows:

Computer 1

MasterBath 2 $z = 1.739$ $p < .041017$

MasterBath 3 $z = 1.760$ $p < .039204$

MasterBath 5 $z = 1.704$ $p < .044191$

MasterBath 6 $z = 2.166$ $p < .015156$

MasterBath 7 $z = 1.825$ $p < .034001$

Den 3 $z = 2.018$ $p < .021796$

Den 4 $z = 1.829$ $p < .033700$

Den 5 $z = 1.861$ $p < .031372$

may have, and to help us gain knowledge and experience to help these clients and others as well.
We also thank the clients for their most gracious hospitality.
