Private Residence Lonview, LA

HISTORY

There is a residence located in Longville, La., which resides on property once owned by a Civil War Colonel. It inhabited civil war camps for a time, as well as an army camp site during World War II. The property was then bought by the Grandfather of the current resident, and built a home there. The property is now owned by the Grandson, who recently tore down the old house and built new. When building the new house, some of the older house was incorporated into the new. While living in the old house, strange things were heard, seen, and felt. Now with the new house, nothing has changed. In daughters bedroom, sounds are heard in crawl space next to bed. Speaking is often heard in hallway and stairs, but unable to understand what's being said. Often times objects are moved from where they were placed, only to be found elsewhere. A young man is often seen walking through the property wearing a red shirt, and always seen in the same area.

There are two other residences residing on this same property, and experiencing much of the same activity.

LaSpirits SW Chapter investigated the residence and encountered a few unexplained events. A couple of hard thumps were heard on floor in one of the bedrooms. Scratching on the wall heard by investigators on wall in kitchen area. Footsteps were heard on stairs as though someone was walking up, only to find nobody was there. We also captured a few pieces of interesting, and unexplainable audio.
