

Investigation Summary Report

Private Residence Robeline, LA

HISTORY

This home is located in a very interesting portion of the small town of Robeline, La. Once known as "no mans' land", this area was not under U.S. nor Mexican jurisdictions, meaning that if someone were to be evading the law, this area was the place to go, for no law enforcement could follow them. This being so, this area was often home to criminals and the filth of the land. Travelers passing through these areas were often robbed, or even murdered. Next to the home was the site where a well once stood, which was supposedly the site where numerous bodies were dumped by a local band of criminals.

The home that now stands on these grounds is currently a rent home that is not inhabited. Reports from the current homeowner show that approximately 2 years ago, a young male was stabbed to death in the driveway.

ACTIVITY

According to the homeowner, strange noises, shadows being seen, and objects moving are the most commonly reported types of activity. The homeowner strongly feels that the activity is mainly due to her grandfather, who lived there previously. It was noted that the grandfather was a strong believer in the paranormal and even had the ability of telekenisis. Most of the activity in the home was reported in the main bedroom, which was where the grandfather slept.

INVESTIGATION

We arrived at the home early in the evening. Being use to hauling in tons of equipment and setting it all up on multiple floors, it was a breath of fresh air to only bring in one DVR setup and have everything running in 15 minutes! The night went pretty smooth, with no immediate activity being experienced. We departed the home around 1:00 am, with the disappointment that we had not recovered any evidence. Video and photographs obtained produced no evidence. However, we did recover one interested piece of audio which was obtained in the main bedroom. Only Raymond and I were present at the time the audio was taken. We are unsure as to what it is saying, so I will post it as a "you be the judge". I have attached the original version and a version that is slowed down a bit. Thinking the night was unproductive, we were surprised when we found this clip. We would definitely like to make a return trip, in an attempt to obtain more evidence.
